The John Wells Pratt House Museum is an Italianate home built circa 1861. It hosts a number of permanent exhibits including a large Hunter Arms Exhibit room. Features of note are elaborately etched panels on the interior door, curved staircase, coffin corner, marble fireplaces, and built-in marble wash basins.

The house also features a period kitchen from the early 1900's, with Mrs. Pratt's Andes combination coal and gas stove.

The upstairs galleries display collections relating to family life, manufacturing, farming, retail, recreation, veterans, physicians, police and firemen, as well as an original telephone switchboard.

The Pratt House Museum & Hunter Arms Gallery hours are: Wednesday through Friday from 10:00 am to 3 :00 pm from April through mid-December.
